

New York: Statement from Last Store on Main Street Founder Jeff Saunders

WIGS Backers Spend Nearly Half a Million to Force Dangerous Plan

Source: Last Store on Main Street

June 9, 2011

Today's report issued by Common Cause New York outlined yet again how desperate the Big Box stores are to force legislation that would allow wine sales in grocery stores, and ultimately kill thousands of family-owned, small businesses in New York State. In just the first four months of this year, Wegman's Food Markets spent more than $415,000, adding to the millions of dollars they have spent in their failed effort to try and force this bad plan through the Legislature. No matter how much money the Big Box stores spend, the Legislature knows the truth: WIGS is bad for small businesses, bad for New York's small wineries and bad for our teenagers.